I began my career in the NHS in 2019. I worked at the Welsh Ambulance Services NHS Trust (WAST) as a band 2 Admin Assistant. My role was based around the servicing of ambulances and taking care of breakdowns etc. I then secured a job at HEIW in 2020 as a band 4 Strategic Workforce Planning Officer. And I've been very lucky to have had the opportunity to grow my job to a band 5 role.

There are so many opportunities to grow and progress in the NHS and my story is a prime example of that. I developed my role by proactively taking on more responsibilities, upskilling with various courses and by participating in different projects.

A big part of my role is to organise events and support with project work. My team are amazing and my manager is really supportive in helping me continually grow. The values which HEIW has is evident in all of its employees, we all support each other and help each other progress.

The NHS is more than just nurses and doctors, this campaign epitomises this. There is a job suited to all skills, take a look at Careersville to see for yourself.

My advice to anybody considering joining the NHS is to not be afraid of starting at the bottom, you can develop and excel at the rate you want. The only barrier is yourself.
